Objective

As a software developer with 25 years of experience building and selling digital products, I seek a full-time tech lead / principal-level job opportunity to guide and nurture a team that delivers customer-led products. My peers describe me as a detail-oriented and pragmatic project manager with deep technical skills. I am excited about joining or assembling a team that can deliver products they are proud of and that solve real problems. Open-source projects and upstream contributions opportunities are a notable plus.

Proficiencies

In recent years, my technical stack has primarily been Elixir, Phoenix, and LiveView to deliver web software and APIs. These are wonderful technologies, and while I will continue to use them, I am open to other stacks for the right fit. Other timely experiences have included Rust and Svelte and a history building for Apple platforms.

Employment History

December 2023 - Current
Senior Elixir Developer for Allovue (K-12 accounting software)
Contributions to product front and backend needs, including advanced web interfaces and interactive charts. Well-known within the team for deep code review and continuous improvement of code organization.

March 2017 - Current
Self-Employed Elixir Consultant via Zorn Labs LLC
Contract-based employment with a role mix including individual contribution, mentoring, and tech lead responsible for managing a small team. Client work included:

- OAuth and API consumption logic against Google and Microsoft Graph.
- Management of a HIPAA-compliant platform spanning mobile and the web.
- Reverse engineering and conversion of Ember web experiences into LiveView,
- Facebook API integrations for a large commercial web entity.
- Mentoring team members as the company migrated from Java to Elixir.
